in lorca s legacy jonathan mayhew explores multiple aspects of the creative and critical afterlife of federico garcía lorca the most internationally recognized spanish poet and playwright of the twentieth century lorca is an iconic and charismatic figure who has evoked the admiration and fascination of musicians poets painters and playwrights across the world since his tragic assassination by right wing forces in 1936 at the onset of the spanish civil war this volume ranges widely discussing his influence on american theater his much debated lecture on the duende his delayed encounter with queer theory his influence on contemporary spanish poetry and other relevant topics the critical literature on lorca is vast and original contributions are comparatively rare but mayhew has found a way to shed fresh light on his legacy by looking with a critical eye at the creative transformations of his life and work both in spain and abroad lorca s legacy celebrates the wealth of material inspired by lorca bringing to bear a sophisticated theoretically informed critical perspective this book will be of enormous interest to anyone interested in the international projection of spanish literature or anyone who has felt the fascination of lorca s duende both dylan and cohen have been a presence on the music and poetry landscape spanning six decades this book begins with a discussion of their contemporary importance and how they have sustained their enduring appeal as performers and recording artists the authors argue that both dylan and cohen shared early aspirations that mirrored the beat generation they sought to achieve the fame of dylan thomas who proved a bohemian poet could thrive outside the academy and to live his life of unconditional social irresponsibility while dylan s and cohen s fame fluctuated over the decades it was sustained by self consciously adopted personas used to distance themselves from their public selves this separation of self requires an exploration of the artists relation to religion as an avenue to find and preserve inner identity the relationship between their lyrics and poetry is explored in the context of federico garcía lorca s concept of the poetry of inspiration and the emotional depths of duende such ideas draw upon the dislocation of the mind and the liberation of the senses that so struck dylan and cohen when they first read the poetry and letters of arthur rimbaud and lorca the authors show that performance and the poetry are integral and the duende or passion of the delivery is inseparable from the lyric or poetry and common to dylan cohen and the beat generation in six essays poet and novelist anne simpson traces the paths of her thoughts from observation to association through poetry language and metaphor otherness and wilderness walking the beaches and trails near her home in antigonish nova scotia simpson studies the connections between outdoors and inner life a hike along a local ridge and the sighting of an owl spurs an examination of birdsong and its kinship with poetry whose own perch is somewhere near the edge of grammar beyond sure knowledge where resonance and insight take the place of certainty what thoreau called tawny grammar following the owl simpson takes us to the underworld also home to otherness and to the spanish concept of duende the imminent presence of death in life in the work of other artists matthias grunewald s isenheim altarpiece elizabeth bishop s poetry and lesser known visual art and the fiction of nabokov borges and dostoevsky simpson ponders the location of the other in what is presented as subject for in this impasse between what readers and viewers and even the subjects themselves see and cannot see resides the death in life the wilderness on the edge of grammar along the way simpson shares some of her own poetic process the final piece in the collection recounts attempts to write poetry in response to a friend s photographs simpson writes of missteps and her eventual decision to abandon grammar in an effort to move closer to the emptiness that form illuminates and that illuminates form this consideration of form takes on board the buddhist teachings found in the heart sutra the commitment and responsibility we have to imagine what we are not here then is the other that compels the poet to write to occupy a place on the outside edge of onself this book is a kind of wild walking simpson says because as i was writing it my thinking became a little wild brambly and overgrown a kind of elderberry bush the walking and writing became almost indistinguishable i d be busy turning something over in my mind imagining a world without grammar for instance while walking in the woods at the fairmont ridge and be startled out of it by the drumming of a ruffed grouse in winter walking across ice i began thinking that the descents and ascents of poetry were like those of the shamanic journey and why was poetry so intimately concerned with suffering did it reveal voyeurism or a depth of care these essays range around nova scotia as i kept returning to the way this province has become the home of my thinking not just the place where i live the final essay which seemed to grow out of the marram grass along the barrier beaches of the northumberland strait traces the connection between the heart sutra and poetry i guess the real question in each of these essays is the way writing depends upon otherness and how it arcs toward a relationship with the other literary texts the arts s sixteen essays explore numerous aspects of both the theoretical and applied relationships between textuality in the form of novels plays and poems and visuality in the form of the photographic artistic or cinematic image topics range from the linguistic and artistic attempts to express the inexpressible or the transcendent in notions of the sublime where the essence of phenomena eludes the communicative and epistemological capacity of words and images to postmodern representations of time and cinematic adaptations of literary texts the photographic image is also examined as autonomous language that stands in opposition to the verbal and the written text and as a complementary mode that shares some communicative structures and modalities with the word while not being reducible to it the thread that runs through all of the essays is the assertion of the constructive or power of the word spoken recited written and the image representational mimetic nonrepresentational to create meanings as well as the implication that somehow that capacity is partial because it is limited by the inherent nature of the means of expression
